FAQ’S

How does an agency location become Certified by the National Association for Home Care & Hospice?

Agency locations can apply for NAHC Private Duty Home Care Certification by submitting an application, attestation statement, and documentation to the National Association for Home Care & Hospice that demonstrates their compliance with all nineteen (19) business and operational standards. Each application is carefully reviewed by dedicated private duty home care NAHC staff, with certification only granted after comprehensive review.

How was the NAHC Private Duty Home Care Certification Program developed?

The standards of certification were developed by private duty home care industry leaders. Many of these leaders serve on the NAHC Private Duty Home Care Advisory Board, Advocacy Council, and NAHC Board of Directors. In addition, the NAHC Private Duty Home Care Certification Program has been modeled after elements within the NAHC Private Duty Accreditation program, and successful state certification programs in Massachusetts and California developed by The California Association for Health Services at Home (CAHSAH) and the Home Care Alliance of Massachusetts (HCA).

How long does it take to become certified?

Once an agency location submits its application to the National Association for Home Care & Hospice, along with all required documentation, an agency will receive determination within 30 days of submission.

If after formal review, it is determined the agency location has not met all nineteen (19) of the business and operations standards, the agency location will be notified and given 30 days to provide remedy or withdraw application for Certification.

As a private duty home care member at NAHC, do I have to apply to become certified?

The National Association for Home Care & Hospice’s Private Duty Certification program is voluntary. Whether or not you are a NAHC member you are not required to participate or apply. However, we strongly encourage agency locations to strive towards meeting the sixteen standards of certification and pursue formal certification when they feel ready.
How can I find out if a private duty/ personal care services agency is Certified by the National Association for Home Care & Hospice?

A full list of Private Duty Certified agencies is available on the NAHC website and will be updated on a rolling, monthly basis. Agencies will be listed within our agency locator with special designation.

Who do I contact if I have questions?

All questions and concerns should be emailed to PDCertification@nahc.org.

Does this private duty home care certification program meet all of my state licensure obligations?

Not necessarily. While the NAHC Private Duty Home Care Certification program sets forth sixteen comprehensive and common standards for private duty home care agency locations, state specific licensure rules, regulations, and obligations differ widely from state to state. We encourage you to contact your state licensure department for more details and further clarification.

I operate a private duty home care agency that has more than fifty locations across the United States, If I submit certification program standards for one of my locations and they are successfully certified, does this mean all of my locations can be considered certified?

No. If a private duty home care agency has more than one location, each agency location must submit an application and all supporting documentation to be reviewed. For example, if you have one location in Massachusetts and another in New Jersey, each location would need to submit their own application and materials and would be reviewed and certified separately.

What if I fall out of compliance on something? What should I do?

If your agency location is certified under the Private Duty Home Care Certification program, and you believe you have fallen out of compliance on any or all of the certification standards, please either choose to remedy the compliance issue OR please contact the National Association for Home Care & Hospice at PDCertification@nahc.org. NAHC is here to offer our guidance and support to you and your private duty home care agency. It is our goal and commitment to you, to help you return to full compliance.

How many private duty home care agencies are currently certified by NAHC?

The NAHC Private Duty Home Care Certification Program was created and implemented in October of 2020. As private duty home care agencies are certified, we will update this number on our website.

What is the cost to apply to the program?

Private duty home care members of NAHC in good standing may apply for Private Duty Home Care Certification complimentary. The 2020-2021 program application fee is $750 for non-members. This fee must be paid at time of application. However, we highly encourage non-members to consider NAHC Private Duty Home Care membership. For more information, please contact membership@nahc.org or PDCertification@nahc.org.
